

Dear Mr. Simpson,

I've seen on Infojobs that your company has an open position for a Javascript Frontend Developer Intern and I think I would be a good fit for that role in your company.

I am interested in applying for the job because I admire the company values and I am aligned as well with the mission. Also I have the skillset of what you are looking after in the job post.

About me, I am close to finishing my web development degree, so I am starting looking for a job right now. I speak English fluently, as I have been studying English for 5 years now.

I think I would be suitable to be part of the company due to my English skills, my desire to work, my coding skills and last but not least, my desire to work.

I look forward to hearing from you soon,

Yours sincerely,

Laura Orts Ramon.
